Daniela Ribeiro

Daniela Ribeiro was born to Portuguese parents in 1972 in Angola, where she lived until 1993. She then moved to Portugal to study Digital Design and Image Manipulation. Daniela continued her studies International Relations in Lisbon's University Lusitana. Since 2000 Daniela attended painting course in Lisbon Fine Arts Society and in 2005 she established ArtinPark, an association aiming to support young artists. A year later she moved to Paris to study sculpture in Pascal Rosier's School. After moving to London at the end of 2010 Daniela worked on a collaborative project of ArtinPark and Fiat Marylebone. Her work is inspired by African visual culture which is deeply rooted in her identity.
